book will make you rich in the poetry your listeners would know.)

James Larkin Pearson wrote several volumes of “down home” poetry, touching on subjects close to the homesteaders heart, capturing the essence of living in the country, working hard, loving a family, touching God and nature. They are easy to read and understand.

Fifty Acres

Plowed Ground

Early Harvest

Pearson’s books were published in the late 1940s and early 1950s.
